WORKERS DO NOT WANT UFWOC SAYS PANDOL

PORTERVILLE — "Delano vineyard workers do not want a union," according to Jack Pandol, grower and spokesman for Delano and Kern county grower groups, who spoke at a dinner meeting of the Porterville Farm Bureau Center Tuesday night at Gang Sue's.

"Farm workers have rejected the Agricultural Workers Organizing committee and Cesar Chavez. Cesar has never won an election," Pandol said.

"So you say I'm prejudiced," he continued. "Go to Delano, talk to vineyard workers on your own. Ask the workers - any workers."

Pandol said further, "I don't want labor organized. I have 175 workers who don't want it either. I have never asked an

Editorial Comment

THE PEACEFUL APPROACH

The orderly approach to progress normally doesn't grab the headlines or arouse ugly emotions but its impact generally is much more lasting and effective. And its basis is without the hypocrisy of the rant-and-rave school.

E. Alan Mills, executive vice president of the California Grape and Tree Fruit League, recently gave evidence of this orderly process in a speech before the Western Conference of the Council of State Government at East Glacier, Montana. He spoke representing California's table grape growers, outlining the position of that industry.

In eloquent and reasoned style, Mills presented the need for federal legislation to resolve the sticky problem of farm labor organization and collective bargaining—agricultural workers presently have no legal channels for forming a union. He emphasized the urgent need for a law allowing farm workers the protections of collective bargaining.

Mills called for a measure that would aid not only workers but farmers and consumers as well—in other words, all segments of agriculture. Such legislation is essential, he said, to guarantee the unimpeded flow of food to market.

The grape industry's support for fair legislation is in marked contrast to the hysteria-tinged approach of the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee which has rejected every conceivable legislative answer to farm labor collective bargaining.

The industry's reasoned call for a legislative solution to the farm labor controversy is in marked contrast to UFWOC's "rule or ruin" tactics on the farm and in the marketplace.

Time Out

By Davis Harp

Porterville's leap into the football wars of 1969 last weekend was at least successful, if not unforgettable. Porterville High's Panthers showed flashes of class Friday night as they dropped the Arvin Bears 24-8. The same evening the Monache High Marauders played their first varsity game ever and battled Shafter to a 14-14 standoff. Saturday night, in a game which saw both teams at times looking like the Keystone Cops taking clumsy lessons, the Porterville College Pirates were edged by the COS Giants, 6-0.

The PUHS-Arvin contest was actually closer than was indicated by the score. The Bears unleashed a fine running game, headed by fullback Mel Tarver, that shredded the gut of the Panther defensive line. A rash of fumbles and penalties by the Arvin eleven crippled their offense and changed what would have otherwise been a close game.

The Panther's offensive unit is going to score a lot of points this season with quarterback Rich Bland calling the shots. The smooth senior runs with a fine blend of speed and power, and 26-yard touchdown ramble in the second quarter was the sort of thing of which Gary Bebens are made. When Bland chose to unlimber his throwing arm he showed both accuracy and range. His shots to Lee McQueen, impressive big tight end, accounted for much yardage and one touchdown. The corps of Panther running backs was not over-powering against the Bears. Bob Otto, a brawny junior fullback, showed some style and he will improve as he matures, and gets more help from his offensive line.

The jury is still out on the Panther defense. Although it limited the Bears to a single TD last week it showed a weakness to strong, up-the-middle running, weakness it cannot afford this week against Bakersfield's South High.

In the Rebels the Panthers will face a severe early season test. The Rebs, who were valley co-champions with Fresno High last year, have 12 returning Sunday, and Colette Laux and Emmy Lu Weldon will head the committee for the 4-H window display in a Porterville store window.

Other activities planned were an educational tour, initiation night, Veteran's parade, Christmas party, livestock field days, demonstrations, project tour, fairs and a picnic.

lettermen from a squad that was unbeaten in its march to a valley play off tie with Fresno. South boasts an entirely veteran backfield headed by All-Southern Yosemite League quarterback Mark Hance. Gone is the line-ripping Brent McClanahan, and Coach Larry LaFond admits that he doesn't have another one like him, but nobody else does either. The South defense is bulwarked by Jesse Jimines, who was an all-valley guard last year as a junior, and Bill Van Worth, a Milton the Monster-type tackle.

The Rebels opened their season last week by taking second in the Bakersfield Carnival. In four quarters of football they were tied by East Bakersfield, 8-8, and stopped Foothill, 14-3. In both games the South offense was moved primarily by the long throwing of Hance. This game will give some indication of just how good the Panthers are.

Monache goes south again this week as they take on Wasco, Friday. The Tigers dropped their season opener in Lancaster to Quartz Hill by a 27-0 count. Wasco, 1-8 last year under former Porterville College Coach Pat Mills, have 13 returning lettermen topped by All-Southern Sierra League Quarterback Gordon Brown. Against Quartz Hill the Tigers did everything wrong as their offense and never did get off the ground. I look for the Marauders to notch their first varsity win in this one.

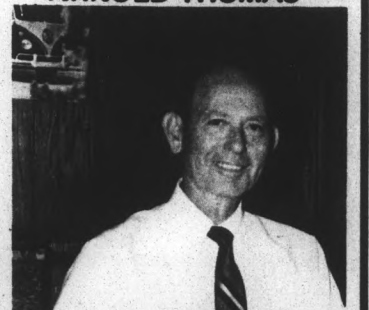

Coach Sim Iness' Pirates were all hit and no run Saturday night against the COS Giants. The PC eleven displayed a strong, capable defense and offense that was something else. The Pirate running attack (Is that the right word?) produced a net total of 17 yards for the evening's work. Lew Alcindor can fall farther than that. But, a good deal of the Pirates offensive failure can be traced to the extremely hard-nosed swarming Giant defense.

In fact, penalties, interceptions, and fumbles aside, the night featured a fine display of defensive football for both squads.

Because of their defense, PC will be a team to be reckoned with. But, if they hope to produce a winner out on South Main street, the Pirate offense will have to generate more punch than was shown against COS.

This week the Pirates make the long haul to Barstow. The desert city eleven dropped their lid-lifter to Antelope Valley, 21-6.

A blackout in Southern California?

On August 4 of this year, a power shortage plunged New York into its most serious power crisis since the massive blackout of 1965.

Lights went dim. TV screens got fuzzy. And people were asked to cut back on their use of air conditioning.

The problem: not enough generating plants. The reason: New York utilities were not permitted to build new facilities as planned. Building schedules were postponed because of delays in governmental authorization.

Could a widespread blackout happen here? Not likely now—but it could happen in the future if we don't build more generating plants now, as well as substations and transmission lines.

To make certain you will continue to enjoy low-cost, uninterrupted service, we must build some new plants here in Southern California—close to where the power is used.

A new Edison plant can benefit your community in many ways, including millions of tax dollars every year to aid your local school districts. In fact, Edison is the largest single taxpayer in many of the communities and counties where we operate generating plants.

Does a power plant create smog? According to Air Pollution Control District authorities, Edison power plants now account for less than 1% of the total tonnage of air pollutants in the Los Angeles Basin. In comparison, automobiles account for nearly 90%.

Nobody wants smog, including us. We've been pioneering ways to prevent pollution since 1954. You can count on us—wherever Edison builds a plant—to more than meet the most stringent controls for clean air established by local and state authorities, plus the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Because it involves you and your environment. To us, that's important. After all, 11,000 of us work at Edison. Our families live in Southern California, too.

Based on population projections, we need to build new generating plants and, of course, transmission lines to bring the power to you in certain key areas.

We should build a plant near Victorville in San Bernardino County.

We need another, with two units, in Ventura County. Work is well underway on the first unit at Ormond Beach near Point Mugu.

And we need two new generating units at our Huntington Beach station in Orange County. Later, we'll need other plants within our 14-county service territory.

To meet current demand for electricity, we're generating power for Southern California by every practical means—water, gas, oil, coal and the atom. We're also importing electricity from New Mexico and the Pacific Northwest over extra-high-voltage transmission lines.

The best way to prevent a power shortage is to avoid having all your eggs in one electrical basket. That's why we need to build more generating stations, substations and transmission lines throughout Southern California.

Should it become necessary to build in your area, may we count on your understanding and support? You would be helping Southern California to remain the brightest spot in the nation.

Officials Join In Groundbreaking For New United Calif

PORTERVILLE — Civic dignitaries, local business leaders, and United California Bank executives joined Friday at groundbreaking ceremonies for UCB's new Porterville office to be constructed on the southwest corner of Henderson avenue and Indiana street.

The new bank will replace the existing trailer-bank at 877 West Henderson which opened there in December, 1967.

The new office will represent a total investment by the owner-builder, Kelton Title corporation and lessor United California Bank of approximately $250,000. The bank will spend about $75,000 for furniture, fixtures, and vault equipment and the cost to the owner for the building will be about $175,000.

Now is the time for all fall gardeners to do their thing. The ground is still warm enough to turn your plants and seeds on and yet the air is cool enough to keep them from blowing their vegetative minds. Every type of weed from alyssum to xylosma may be used for your annual fall plant in.

If you're a lover of grass it too is best cultivated now. Only occasional attention is required during the winter months and the neighbors will be amazed at your abilities when they see your spring harvest. You'll obtain many kilos of the finest stuff with just a little effort.

If none of these are your bag then we won't hassle you but do hope you'll eyeball our imported stuff from Holland. Tulips, Hyacinths, Iris, Daffodils, Crocus, Ranunculus, Anemone, and many other items of contraband are being slipped through daily.

For a garden that will bomb your friends right out of their skulls or a new type of pot we suggest a short trip to Daybell's pad just south of the infamous slough on big "E" Street. Your plants will be glad you did.

BAKERSFIELD — The Kern Junior College district now has an enrollment of over 12,000 students, according to Dr. Edward Simonsen, district superintendent. In a report to the board of trustees, Dr. Milton Sanden, dean of administration, said that Bakersfield college has an enrollment of 5,705 in the daytime and 3,800 in the evening. For the Desert campus, according to Dean Richard Jones, there are 779 evening students and 190 day students. Orlin Shires, president of Porterville college, reported an

THE OLD DAYS Yester-Years - The Train Stopped At Ponca

By S. L. Creeks

Thanks to Harlan Ohde for the comment on my article on the large hill south and east of the State hospital, which I call Deer Creek hill as that is the only name I knew it by till later years. If it is possible to find an old map of Tulare County back about 1910 you would probably find the name Deer Creek hill on it. Also you would find the name Plano on it.

Around 1910 I believe the Plano Packing house was built which ran or operated in conjunction with the Porterville Citrus association in Porterville. When the packing house was built the Southern Pacific railroad put a railroad siding in so the oranges could be freighted to eastern markets. About this time the Arizona thistles were not known of in our nice clean town. These thistles to most people are called punture vines. Well, the seed of this nice plant was brought in by a large amount of sheep that was shipped in by freight cars. The seeds of this plant were in the wool and dropped to the ground which in turn were scattered by what few automobiles there was at that time.

This siding of the railroads had to be named so not to conflict with another siding called Plano by the railroad, they called it Ponca. The sign may still be there at the siding's end. The railroad's passenger service was giving way so the S.P. made a ruling the passenger train could be stopped at Ponca and the Lois warehouse siding which is now known as Tea Pot Dome. This name was brought into existence by a man named Bill Duncan who called it Tea Pot Dome deriving the name from the Sinclair Oil company enrollment of 956 daytime students and 602 in the evening, an increase of 29.7 per cent over last year.

Tea Pot Dome scandal. This road which is now called old 65 was then called the Lois Warehouse road, then went to being called Tea Pot Dome road.

How well do I know about stopping the train at Ponca. I would stand out on the railroad as the train came in sight from the north until the engineer tooted his whistle, then step off and wait till it pulled up and stopped for me. Suitcase in hand I would stand there and shake as that big iron monster pulled up with four or five cars. My sister, Mrs. Angie Hunt, lived in Bakersfield at that time, who I made many trips to visit.

Another rise in the terrain is the hill on the Worth road about half way between the Plano road and the State hospital. During the year 1897 my older sister, Bessie, married Robert Martin, uncle of Mrs. Ethel Prestage and had their home next to the ditch, on the northeast side of what was then called Martin's hill, by a large oak tree. On the top of this Martin's hill is a large rock formation from which you get a panorama view of the whole valley as well as the State hospital. On the northwest base of the hill at one time a Jade mine was worked but abandoned on account of the grade of the ore.

FIRST BALE OF COTTON IN COUNTY

What's doing?

I'd like to pass on this reminder about the most relaxed, comfortable way you can travel these days — Fly Pacific Telephone Lines with a long distance call. In seconds you can be visiting friends or family. And the cost is low. After six p.m. weekdays or all weekend long, it costs 85¢ or less for three minutes, station-to-station, plus tax—anywhere in California. Now where can you beat a round trip travel offer like that?

If you're like a lot of people, you scribble phone numbers you want to remember on everything imaginable . . . matchbooks, scraps of paper and odds and ends of all sorts. So here's a suggestion that will help you keep those numbers organized. Let us give you one of our Personal Numbers Booklets. It has plenty of spaces for names, addresses, and telephone numbers; and it's a handy size for slipping under the phone. Just call The Porterville Business Office 784-0400 and we'll be happy to send you one—or more if you need them.

Some early day handset telephone users likely found themselves developing some unusual arm muscle. One 19th century handset—a separate transmitter and receiver attached to thick steel—weighed in at 1 pound 10 ounces. The weight of most modern handsets: a mere 10 ounces.

United Giving reminds you: "People need help. You can help them help themselves by giving your fair share the United Way."

WORKERS DO NOT WANT UFWOC

employee of mine if he wants to join Chavez or not. But workers have told me, 'If you sign with Chavez, we quit.'"

Pandol said that workers are not slaves, that they have the right of self determination. He said that he hoped farmers would stick to their stand - that they will not "sell agricultural labor down the river" by forcing them into a union without their vote.

Pandol was highly critical of the Migrant ministry, and of other church and general groups in connection with their endorsement of the current grape boycott - including his own Catholic church.

He said that most of the organization representatives who come to Delano are honest people, "but they are wrong." They refuse to see what is actually going on.

"I have been in most of the large eastern cities. I have been in Canada, Central America, South America, and Mexico in connection with my business," Pandol said. "I have seen how other people live - working people. Nothing compares with, nothing approaches the wages, the housing, and the living conditions of vineyard workers in the Delano area."

"Yet I receive threatening letters from people 3,000 miles away who know nothing of the real situation. I received a nasty letter from nine-year-old kids in an eastern Catholic school, directed by Nuns. What they say is just not true. There has to be a plan operating behind the scenes."

Pandol traced briefly the history of the Chavez movement in Delano, saying that Chavez's father went broke farming in Texas. "But many people lost farms and businesses in the depression without becoming radicals."

Chavez joined forces with Fred Ross, who Pandol said is western director for the Saul Alinsky organization, but "who is no crusader. He works for money, big money."

Pandol said that Chavez first started a farm labor organization of sorts. He also started a credit union, a burial insurance plan, and a labor contracting type of setup to help workers procure

JACK PANDOL, left, Delano grape grower and shipper, who, Tuesday evening, told persons attending a meeting of the Porterville Farm Bureau Center that vineyard workers in Delano do not want a union - and that if they think he is prejudiced, "go to Delano, talk to the workers and see for yourself." With him is Les Taylor, chairman of the Porterville Farm Center.

"These things were good," Pandol said. "And for the good things, 'God bless him.'"

But after a minor labor disturbance, strangers began to show up in Delano and the "wolf packs" went to work - threatening to beat up workers who did not strike, threatening to set fire to homes of non-strikers, screaming insults and profanities at non-striking workers and their families, and using any possible tactics to disrupt vineyard operations.

Pandol said that in a conversation he had with Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, Reuther told him, "With the dignity of the church and muscle of the unions, you farmers don't have a chance."

It was suggested by Pandol that somewhere in the background there may be an organized plan to take over control of the food supply of America. "With absolute control of distribution or withholding of five major farm commodities, a group would have absolute control of America."

Pandol said that as a result of the grape boycott, "We are selling fewer grapes, we are getting more money for what we sell, prices in markets are higher - it is the housewife who is being played for a sucker."

He said that there has been no shortage of vineyard workers as a result of the activities of Chavez; he said that in one case where a processor entered into contract with the union, this processor is not now able to get the workers he needs.

Pandol said that when the Schenley and Di Georgio organizations signed with Chavez to "protect their brands on the market, they sold their farm workers down the river and destroyed from $5-6,000,000 worth of work."

Later Di Georgio broke up the corporation's farming operation in Kern county, much of the property was purchased by another farming firm, as a result of the sale the UFWOC contract became null and void, with a large majority of the workers who had been under the Di Georgio contract still working on the property, there has been no effort by workers to get back into the union, Pandol said.

Concerning his general philosophy, Pandol said that America's greatness comes from work, from a striving for better things, for an effort to reach higher planes. Greatness does not come from efforts to destroy.

"If you want something, there's still plenty of dirt left in this country. You can do what you want to do, if you are willing to earn what you want," Pandol said.

OUTSTANDING SCIENCE STUDENTS BEING SOUGHT BY EDISON COMPANY

PORTERVILLE — A search for the area's most outstanding high school science student is now being conducted by Southern California Edison company.

W.R. Dougher, district manager for the electric utility, said the top student will be invited to attend the 11th annual Youth Conference on the Atom, October 23-25, in Chicago.

Edison, as local sponsor of the event, has invited all public and private high schools in its service territory to nominate one student as a possible candidate.

"From these nominations, six students - one from each of the company's six geographic divisions - will be selected to attend the science conference," he said.

The student's high school science teacher will also be invited to attend the three-day forum.

Last year Kent Sorey of Porterville High School was selected as outstanding science student in Edison's northern division. Sorey attended the Chicago conference with his science teacher John H. McGuire.

More than 800 students and teachers from throughout the United States are expected to participate in the forum. They will meet with some of the nation's leading scientists and hear about the latest progress in a variety of scientific fields.

"The Youth Conference is designed to inspire the scientific leaders of tomorrow by giving them an opportunity to meet and talk with the leaders of today," Dougher said.

Cotton Coming On Fast; Raisin Drying Ideal

VISALIA - Cotton bolls are opening fast in early-planted fields on light soil, and weather has been ideal for raisin drying, according to weekly report from County Agricultural Commissioner Elvin O. Mankins.

The cotton picture, however, is not all bright, as wilt continues to take its toll.

Mankins reports the status of other farm commodities as: Milo is in all stages of growth from just heading out to harvest; olive harvest is underway with a normal crop, or better; late peaches are being packed; a few quince have been shipped; wine grape harvest is in full swing.

New citrus crop is making a satisfactory growth; romaine is up and thinning is underway; late tomatoes have started to set; string beans are making good growth.

out of the State under special permit for processing, preserving or manufacturing purposes.

Pomegranates are grown mostly in Tulare, Fresno and Kern Counties. California grows virtually all of the nation's production. Last year's crop totalled 2,900 tons, with a value of $282,000 to the growers.

Hendrick, left, district director; on the other side of the congratulatory handshake is Dr. David Franklin, Porterville club president. Awarding of the "E", highest honor in the National Exchange club organization, is based on excellence in five areas of public service, and on membership gains. #### CENTENNIAL

Saturday, 7:30 p.m., at the church; a recognition of special guests at the 11:00 a.m. worship service Sunday; and a church reception and program at 3:00 p.m., Sunday.

Speaker at the Friday evening dinner will be Dr. Russell Orr, executive minister of the American Baptist Convention of Northern California; a former pastor, the Rev. R.R. Pulliam, of San Diego, will bring greetings; G.K. Patterson will serve as master of ceremonies.

As a special feature of the Centennial observance, a special program of historical slides will be presented by Jeff Edwards in the church sanctuary Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m., and a potluck dinner in the church social hall will follow the Sunday morning service.

The church was organized at the Burton school on September 6, 1869, by Mrs. Martha Ramey, Charles A. Rose, George A. Williamson and his wife, Mattie Williamson.

Early meetings of the church, first called the Tule River Baptist church, were held in the Burton school, then, later, in the Davis, Ackerman and Putnam halls in Porterville. Name was changed to First Baptist Church of Porterville in 1893.

In 1906, property was acquired and construction started on a church building at Second and Mill in Porterville; about 10 years ago a new church was constructed on the west side of the city.

In connection with the Centennial observance, a Centennial Illustrated Directory is available at a small charge.

Lt. J.D. Martin, officer-in-charge of the Porterville substation. Morgan will make his home in Porterville, with his wife and three children.
